

ODELL "COMES BACK" WITH THE HUGHES BOOM

"Sick Man of Newburg" May Take Old Place as Head of Party Machine.

"KNOWS HIS BUSINESS."

Has Proved This by Forcing Governor to Front Despite the Would-Be Bosses.

(Special to The Evening World from a Staff Correspondent.)

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—"The sick man of Newburg," as former Gov. Odell is now called, seems to be disturbing the peace of a lot of healthy men. For a man who hasn't been out of the house for three months and is destined to stay there for some weeks more, Mr. Odell seems to be cutting a lot of the politically. His name is heard more at present among politicians than that of any other man, with the possible exception of Gov. Hughes. And their names are linked in all discussions. That there is a good reason for this is apparent to all followers of the political game. The reason shows that a good man who knows his business cannot be permanently downed. Odell knows his business. It showed that at Saratoga two years ago, when he insisted on the nomination of Mr. Hughes. He gave further proof of it when he introduced in the State Committee a resolution endorsing the Governor for the Presidential nomination. He only rounded up four votes out of thirty-seven, but he kept the roll call.

When young Mr. Parsons and his followers fused with the Hearst crowd Odell and his followers side-stepped. With the coming out of Gov. Hughes in the Presidential field, Odell was right there with the goods-by proxy-and is there still. From a man whose followers ran away to chase other gods a few months ago, he is beginning to emerge a leader who will be followed whenever he gives the word.

That he will easily be the dominant figure in the Presidential campaign in this State is evident from what appears to be a general demand for him to come back and take his old place at the head of the party machine in this State, which has been leaderless for two years. Whether he will do so remains to be seen.

Recalls Leggett, Niagara Falls Franchise Grab Promoter.

Some legislators who were here four years ago would have had occasion to remember former Assemblyman Leggett, of Niagara Falls, if they had attended a hearing before the Public Service Commission yesterday. Leggett was famous for jamming Niagara Falls power franchises through the Assembly. Once he got tripped up, but when the session was over the people at Niagara Falls learned to their dismay that the legislation they thought killed had been put through on the end of a New York City gas bill.

James E. Rock wants a franchise to bid against a company that has the electric lighting monopoly at the Falls at present.

He told how he had organized a company and engaged Leggett as his attorney. When the company had been organized Leggett told Rock that he and his partner had not acted as legal advisers in the matter, but that the proposition should be considered as a mere and divided accordingly. Inasmuch as Leggett had a partner, that would have given Rock but 33 1/3 per cent. of the stock of his own company. Leggett and his partner, however, concluded that they would do better by Rock, so they let him have forty-nine shares of his own company.

Didn't Recognize Odelltown Style of Lobster Cooking.

One of the Court of Appeals judges dined at the Ten Eyck last night. Now, when you're a judge of that august court you're right up among the high-browed of the high-brows. There, at least, that's the theory. Blackstone says that's the theory. Blackstone says it's important only in a primary sense. You never have to take note of the proletariat, and when a plain ordinary common or garden variety of human speaks deferentially it is optional whether you send him up for contempt or not curley.

So when this particular high-browed judge seated himself, austere and picked up the card, the low-browed country visitor at the west table expected something enlightening.

"Er—what is this?" inquired the high-brow, obsequious waiter peered deferentially over the high-brow's shoulder. "Lobster à la Newburg," he replied.

"What is it?" asked the high-brow.

Brackett, Leader of Hughes Forces, in a Queer Quandary.

Edgar Truman Brackett, the leading spirit of the Hughes League, is likely to find himself confronted with an abundance of Presidential favorites of Gov. Hughes. But his first real chance is to be a Senator or Governor. He is committed to the support of Gov. Hughes, and not at all out of the Presidential race. Black and Brackett are personally one and indivisible. If Shaw and Black should take it into their heads to get into the game Brackett would have a hard time finding out where he stands.

Wadsworth's "Treat" Proved Speaker One of the Boys.

Speaker Jimmie Wadsworth, owner of a vast estate in the Genesee Valley, was dining with a party of Assemblymen.

"Do you know, Mr. Speaker," spoke up a member from the Southern tier, "I tagged you as an aristocrat and somewhat of a snob. I am sorry to find I was wrong. I went to Schenectady with you that night several weeks ago and you took us all in to have a peep into the penny-in-the-slot picture machines in the arcade. From that time I've always thought you were just as human as the rest of us and one of the boys."
